Unpack the Quack, Sept 21 and 22, returns with continuing process improvements and mitigation measures

Though some incoming students can move into their residence hall earlier if participating in certain programming, the bulk of residence hall move in will take place Thursday and Friday, with an expected 4,000 students arriving at pre-assigned times to spread congestion out over the two days.

Hundreds of UO staff volunteers will assist in this effort, helping students and their families and friends unload vehicles as efficiently as possible. Read on to learn more about what you can expect, and some of the mitigation measures put in place to improve this process.
Process:
Students are pre-assigned a move-in date and time and will take a route specific to their residence hall. Unpack the Quack volunteers will assist with expedited unloading, and the vehicle will then proceed to Autzen Stadium to park, with continuous, looping bus and van shuttles back to campus to continue unpacking.

Updates for 2023:

- Students living in the New Apartment-Style Residence Hall on Agate Street, around 400 students, will move in on Wednesday, September 20, with most other students moving in on Thursday and Friday.
- There will be many check-in locations placed close to residence halls. Each residence hall has its own route for entry and egress, dispersing traffic in the campus vicinity.
- Those who arrive early or did not print their unloading credential in advance will be staged in a holding area parking lot, and directed when to proceed.
- Housing has contracted with a third party company that specializes in university move-ins to streamline processes. Minimizing wait times to ease downstream traffic bottlenecks have been the focus, like maximizing use of residence hall elevators and the use of speed packs.

Street closures, restricted to Unpack the Quack traffic (see map below with road closures/congested colored orange-red):

- East 13th Ave, from Franklin to University
- Agate Street, north of 18th
- East 15th Ave, west of Moss
- East 17th Ave, west of Moss
