Students may transition in residency and/or level, which may result in reporting anomalies, e.g. a graduate student receiving funding that is specific to undergraduate students, or a nonresident student receiving funding that is specific to Oregon residents.

Detailed distribution data does not sum to total 'Met Need' because these amounts have been capped so that paid aid does not exceed need for an individual student.

DOUBLE THE PELL GRANT

Pell Grants are the federal government’s main tool for helping low-income students afford college. In 1980, Pell Grants covered more than 75 percent of the cost to attend a 4-year public university. Today the maximum award covers just 28 percent. The maximum award currently stands at $6,495 for the 2021-22 award year.

Pell Grants help nearly 7 million low-and moderate-income students attend and complete college annually. That is 40 percent of undergraduates at U.S. colleges and universities.

Pell Grants are especially critical for students of color, with nearly 60 percent of Black students, and roughly half of American Indian or Alaska Native students and Hispanic students receiving a Pell Grant each year.

Over 1,200 organizations, including nearly 900 colleges and universities, have signaled their support for doubling the maximum award amount to $13,000.

“The Pell Grant is one of the many reasons I had the opportunity to pursue a college degree, and one of the reasons I have time to be involved in the campus community and student organizations like the Black Male Alliance and ASUO.”
